To whom it may concern,

I am writing this report regarding my research visit to Dr. Paolo Acquaviva, a fellow member of the project “networks”, over the period 29/01/2015 to 04/01/2015, at University College, Dublin (Ireland).

The research visit had the goal of establishing a work relation with Dr. Acquaviva, based on a joint research project that was approved by the “Networks” committee, and that aims to define a novel theory about the morpho-semantic properties of nouns, and their relations to non-linguistic concepts. During the visit, Dr. Acquaviva and I were successful in identifying the core linguistic problems that we had to address and solve via our theory, and identified all the core readings on which we would build our proposal.

As a result, we laid out a feasible work-plan for the production of a paper that will present this theory, which will certainly be preceded by one or more conference talks at international venues. Given the rather conspicuous convergence on scientific perspectives and work methodologies, we think that this will likely be the beginning of a new, long-term collaboration, which hopefully will be carried out under the auspices of a renovated “Networks” project.

We take this occasion to thank the “Networks” network for the financial support. We are at your further disposal, should any further information be necessary.

Sincerely,

Francesco-Alessio Ursini, Ph.D.
