Methodological and Conceptual Issues

August 17-20, 2005
Copenhagen, Denmark

The fourth TSC "midway" conference will focus on the methodological and conceptual challenges facing interdisciplinary investigations of consciousness. In recent years, scientists have made increasing use of philosophical notions such as

Announcement

Introduction

Towards a Science of Consciousness 2003: Between Phenomenology and Neuroscience conference will take place in Prague, Czech Republic from July 6th to 10th 2003.

The conference will cover the current state of the field of consciousness research. Selection process is now over and submissions of original papers in philosophy, psychology, neuroscience, cognitive science and other related fields were selected and scheduled for presentation. Preferences to interactions between the phy, and various neuroscientific first-person experience, rich is the challenge our conference volition, time consciousness; ily, emotion, meditation and their ngs. However, the conference is not ations covering a wide variety of proaches based on interdisciplinary
